

Financial Institutions & Lending

Our Financial Institutions & Lending Practice Area attorneys understand the impact of state and federal laws and regulations on financial institutions such as thrift institutions, banks, and bank holding-companies. Our experience includes bank holding-company and de novo banking institutions formation, securities regulation compliance, and in-bank securities-brokerage-operations development. We have a national reputation for successfully handling matters related to bank mergers and acquisitions, holding-company formations, corporate governance, transactions between bank and non-bank affiliates, and intrastate and interstate expansions. Our attorneys have also provided counsel to financial institutions of all sizes in connection with retaining and protecting their directors and key management personnel.

We regularly provide advice on the structuring and documentation of complex commercial-lending transactions, commercial and consumer real estate loans, secured transactions, electronic banking, financial institution data-processing systems, money-service businesses, cross-border transactions, workouts, restructurings, and foreclosures.

In addition to ensuring our clients have properly drafted loan and security agreements and supporting documentation, our financial institutions and lending attorneys explore different ways to reduce the risk of lender liability by staying up-to-date with the most recent developments in court decisions and in federal and state laws and regulations.
